

Caroline Croft has served in the U.S. Department of State for over fifteen years where she has had the opportunity to live and work in 34 countries. For several years, she was at the White House as the Director of International Programs for the Millennium where she planned and participated in numerous White House events – including the White House Millennium Evenings, St. Patrick’s Day Evenings, the Nordic leaders official luncheon honoring the Viking expeditions, the diplomatic salute to the Millennium Around the World, the U.S. exposition in the British Millennium Dome, U.S. at the Paris Book Fair; and has lived and worked in our Embassies . She has dined and worked with Presidents, Prime Ministers, Senators, Congressmen, Ambassadors, Corporate Executives, and Supreme Court Justices. Among her previous positions in the State Department, Ms. Croft has served as the Executive Director of the United States United Nations office in Washington and the Director of our Cultural Programs Abroad. Currently, she is with the Bureau of Western Hemisphere Affairs and manages issues relating to political/military, security, counter-terrorism, democracy, counter narcotics, legal reform, human rights, developmental assistance, trafficking in persons and illicit substances, nonproliferation, human rights, religious freedom, and democracy-building programs.

For several years, she was at the White House as the Director of International Programs for the Millennium where she planned and participated in numerous White House events – including the White House Millennium Evenings, St. Patrick’s Day Evenings, the Nordic leaders official luncheon honoring the Viking expeditions, the diplomatic salute to the Millennium Around the World, the U.S. exposition in the British Millennium Dome, U.S. at the Paris Book Fair; and has lived and worked in our Embassies . She has dined and worked with Presidents, Prime Ministers, Senators, Congressmen, Ambassadors, Corporate Executives, and Supreme Court Justices.

Among her previous positions in the State Department, Ms. Croft has served as the Executive Director of the United States United Nations office in Washington and the Director of our Cultural Programs Abroad. Currently, she is with the Bureau of Western Hemisphere Affairs and manages issues relating to political/military, security, counter-terrorism, democracy, counter narcotics, legal reform, human rights, developmental assistance, trafficking in persons and illicit substances, nonproliferation, human rights, religious freedom, and democracy-building programs. Prior to joining the Department of State, she served the Executive Director of the Robert F. Kennedy Memorial Foundation, the Executive Director of the Consumer Product Safety Commission, the Director of International Programs for the Congressional Human Rights Foundation, Director of the Runaway and Homeless Youth Programs and served as an advisor to Edward M. Kennedy in the U.S. Senate. Ms. Croft resides in Washington, D.C.