I. Course Description

This course is designed for those students that wish to gain a deeper understanding of the effect of certain U.S. rules governing the taxation of U.S. persons doing business overseas and foreign persons doing business in the United States. The course will cover a broad range of topics with particular emphasis on the tax consequences of cross-border reorganizations, liquidations and taxable acquisitions and dispositions. The course will cover the tax consequences of outbound transfers of assets, foreign-to-foreign transfers of assets, and inbound transfers of assets. Students will be expected to have a working knowledge of corporate taxation, and transactional aspects of subpart F and the foreign tax credit rules.

II. Prerequisites

- Corporate Income Tax Law I (or Taxation II)
- US Taxation of International Transactions (or US Taxation of Domestic Persons Outside the United States)
- Recommended: prior or concurrent enrollment in Corporate Income Tax Law II (if student has not completed Taxation II).

III. Course Materials

- Supplemental materials may be assigned/distributed from time to time.
IV. Examination Procedures, Grading and Attendance

The course will be graded based upon a final take-home examination. The final take-home examination is scheduled between May 3 and May 10, 2016. It is to be completed in a 3-hour period. It will be anonymously graded and open-book. You will be permitted to consult any written materials during the examination, including the course textbooks and other course materials. However, you may not copy into your examination answers any passages from materials previously prepared. In addition, you will not be permitted to confer or otherwise collaborate with anyone else -- classmates or otherwise -- in answering the examination questions. Your answers to the examination questions must be entirely your own, written during the examination period.

Expected class participation includes regular attendance and arrival on time (subject to health issues or other unforeseen circumstances).

V. Class Assignments

Set forth below is a tentative schedule of assignments. The instructors may adjust the assignments periodically over the course of the semester. In advance of each class, students should also review any Powerpoint slides for a particular class, which the instructors will have uploaded to Canvas.
