Ian Sweedler is the Associate General Counsel at the Gordon and Betty Moore Foundation, in Palo Alto, California. Before joining the foundation, Ian was with the California Institute for Regenerative Medicine (CIRM), the state’s stem cell research funding agency, and the Charitable Trusts Section of the California Attorney General’s Office. He began his legal career as a litigator at private law firms in San Francisco and Washington, DC.

Ian received his bachelor’s degree in philosophy from the University of Chicago and his law degree from George Washington University.