

China Institute  Corporate Lecture

INTELLECTUAL PROPERTY & PIRACY IN CHINA: THE NEXT CHAPTER

Historically, one of the impediments to U.S.-China business relations has been China's limited intellectual property (IP) laws. While those laws have been modernized in many respects, U.S. companies continue to complain about enforcement of their IP rights. What are the latest trends in China's effort to battle against rampant piracy? How long will it take for China to nurture a strong awareness of IP rights protection? How should U.S. businesses safeguard and protect their IP rights in China?

To be moderated by James Feinerman, James M. Morita Professor of Asian Legal Studies and Co-director, Asian Law and Policy Studies, Georgetown University Law Center, with panelists to include: Xiaoguang Cui, President of Beijing Sanyou Intellectual Property Agency Ltd; Dr. Albert Wai-Kit Chan, Partner, DeHeng Chen Chan LLC; Elaine T.L. Wu, Attorney-Advisor, U.S. Patent and Trademark Office; Peter K. Yu, Associate Professor of Law & Director, Intellectual Property & Communications Law Program, Adjunct Professor of Telecommunication, Information Studies and Media, Michigan State University College of Law; additional panelists pending.

SPONSORED BY CHINA INSTITUTE

Co-sponsored by Georgetown University Law Center, Finnegan Henderson Farabow Garrett & Dunner LLP, DeHeng Chen and Chen, and Shangri-La Hotels and Resorts

Thursday, October 27, 2005 ~ 9:00–11:30 AM
Georgetown University Law Center, 12th Floor Gewirz Student Center
120 F Street, NW Washington DC

$25 China Institute Members / $35 Non-Members
FREE Corporate Members and Georgetown University Law Center Students

Continental Breakfast Included ~ Reservations Required ~ No-Shows Will Be Billed

RSVP: 212-744-8181 x125 or wkrents@chinainstitute.org

China Institute

80 Years of Expertise
1926 ~ 2006

125 East 65th Street, New York, NY 10021 ~ Tel. 212-744-8181 Fax. 212-628-4159 ~ www.chinainstitute.org