

The Unitarian Universalist Church of Arlington
Warmly Invites You to

A Conversation With Professor Chai Feldblum

“The Virginia Marriage Amendment: What It Does and Why It’s Morally Wrong”

Tuesday, October 17, 2006

7:30 – 8:30 pm

Unitarian Universalist Church of Arlington
4444 Arlington Boulevard, Arlington, Virginia 22204

Professor Chai R. Feldblum, nationally known LGBT rights scholar and advocate and founder of the Moral Values Project, will provide a practical legal analysis on the impact of Virginia’s proposed constitutional marriage amendment, as well as a big picture view on how the marriage debate – within Virginia and nationally – should be shaping the moral conversations we need to be having with our fellow citizens.

Come join us for a provocative and interesting conversation.

This event is free and open to the public.

Chai R. Feldblum is professor of law at Georgetown University Law Center in Washington , D.C., where she also founded and directs the Federal Legislation Clinic. A leading lawyer, scholar and speaker on LGBT rights, disability rights, and health and welfare issues, Professor Feldblum has been involved in federal legislative issues affecting the LGBT community since 1988.

ABOUT UUCA

The Unitarian Universalist Church of Arlington (UUCA) seeks to build and sustain a committed fellowship, to celebrate spirit, to invite the enrichment of human diversity, to nurture spiritual and intellectual growth, and to embody our faith in deeds of justice and love. We are an intentionally inclusive congregation that welcomes people of all races, religious backgrounds, cultural origins and sexual orientations.

* * * * *

For more information:

For directions or other details on UUCA, call 703) 892-2565 or go to www.uucava.org

For event inquiries, contact Marc DeFrancis: m_defrancis@yahoo.com