The Supreme Court Cases Challenging the Constitutionality of the Affordable Care Act

Monday, January 23, 2012  ∙  4:00 – 5:30 PM
Georgetown University Law Center
Gewirz Student Center, 12th floor
600 New Jersey Ave., NW | Washington, DC 20001

Panelists:

Randy Barnett is the Carmack Waterhouse Professor of Legal Theory at Georgetown University Law Center where he teaches constitutional law and contracts. He has published numerous opinion pieces and has spoken frequently about the cases in the Supreme Court challenging the constitutionality of the health reform law. In addition, he is representing the National Federation of Independent Business in its case now pending before the Supreme Court.

Paul Clement is a partner at Bancroft PLLC and an adjunct professor at Georgetown University Law Center. He served as United States Solicitor General from June 2005 until June 2008. He currently represents the 26 states in Florida v. HHS and will argue the case on their behalf in the Supreme Court in March 2012.

Randy Moss is a partner at WilmerHale. Recognized as one of the top constitutional and appellate lawyers in the country, Mr. Moss served as Assistant Attorney General for the Office of Legal Counsel during the Clinton Administration. In that role, Mr. Moss was the principal legal adviser in the Executive Branch.

Moderated by:

Madhu Chugh is an associate in the Litigation/Controversy Department of WilmerHale. She joined the firm in 2010. Ms. Chugh is also an adjunct professor at Georgetown University Law Center, where she teaches health law.

The panelists will discuss the cases in the Supreme Court challenging the constitutionality of the individual mandate provision in the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act (PPACA), the watershed health reform law enacted in March 2010. Panel participants will analyze the various arguments and offer their thoughts about how the Supreme Court could approach consideration of the cases. Audience members will have an opportunity to ask the panelists questions after the discussion.
