Internships and Careers in the United Nations

Presentation by:

Dr. Marie-Joseph Ayissi
Office of the UN High Commissioner for Human Rights

Monday, February 6, 2017
1:30 p.m. – 2:30 p.m.
McDonough 141

Join the Human Rights Institute, the Office of Public Interest and Community Service, and the Office of Graduate Career and Professional Development for a conversation about career paths in the United Nations with Human Rights Office and Georgetown Law Visiting Scholar Dr. Marie-Joseph Ayissi. Visiting from Cameroon, Dr. Ayissi has extensive experience working in United Nations agencies and will provide an overview on the processes, and thoughts on effective strategies, for successfully securing an internship with the world’s premiere international organization. Students are encouraged to bring their laptops to aid in learning to navigate the United Nations recruitment website. Questions about the program can be sent to HRI fellow Patrick Griffith (pwg7@law.georgetown.edu).
