

JD

GEORGETOWN LAW

JURIS DOCTOR 2026-2027

4	The DC Advantage
6	Big School Benefits
8	Small School Feel
10	Scholars Programs
12	Centers and Institutes
14	Experiential Education
16	Careers
18	Public Interest
20	Evening Program
22	Apply

WELCOME TO GEORGETOWN LAW

Tradition. Innovation. A superb faculty. A curriculum unmatched in breadth and depth. And all of this just steps away from the Capitol and Supreme Court. At Georgetown, you learn the law in the place where laws are made.

Since its founding, Georgetown Law has lived by its guiding principle: “Law is but the means, justice is the end.” Wherever your passion for the law takes you—practicing at a global law firm, tackling juvenile justice reform, running for public office—Georgetown Law provides you with a pathway to join our worldwide network of “Hoya Lawyas” and have a career you will love.

A portrait of M. Elizabeth Magill, a woman with shoulder-length wavy blonde hair, smiling. She is wearing a dark blue blazer over a light blue collared shirt and a pearl necklace. The background is a blurred interior with warm lighting and wooden paneling.

“Why Georgetown Law? Simply put: there’s no other place like it. Where else can you study the law just blocks from the U.S. Capitol and the Supreme Court with some of our country’s top legal minds and practitioners? At Georgetown, you’ll find academic experiences that will help fulfill your ambitions and inspire new ones. Most of all, you’ll build a dynamic community of friends, mentors, and colleagues that will support you through law school and beyond. We can’t wait to welcome you to Washington.”

— M. Elizabeth Magill, Dean of Georgetown Law and Executive Vice President of Georgetown University; Paul Regis Dean Leadership Chair

THE DC ADVANTAGE

17

Current professors who have served in presidential administrations

11,000+

Media mentions of Georgetown Law faculty and administration from July 2025
- June 2026

100%

Georgetown Law ran moot courts for attorneys appearing in every single case argued at the Supreme Court during the 2025-26 term

427

Students who took on legal externships in judges' chambers, prosecutor and public defender offices,
government agencies,
private firms and non-profit organizations

Learning the Law Where Laws Are Made

Take a few short steps from the Georgetown Law campus, and you'll find yourself looking up at a familiar sight—the U.S. Capitol. Walk a few more blocks, and you'll be standing in front of the U.S. Supreme Court.

At Georgetown, you will study the dynamic processes of the law in a real-world laboratory. Our students have an unparalleled vantage point—just minutes away from the Congress that enacts laws, the Supreme Court that interprets them, and the executive agencies that enforce them.

We are, quite simply, a place like no other. Consider the breadth of knowledge and the level of experience represented in the Georgetown Law faculty. Our professors serve in key federal government posts, provide expert testimony for congressional committees, and help shape national policy. You'll frequently see them interviewed on national television and quoted in major newspapers.

Supreme Court Institute

Before presenting oral arguments at the U.S. Supreme Court, advocates first make a stop at Georgetown Law.

Our Supreme Court Institute organizes moot courts for every case argued before the nation's highest court. Lawyers from across the country practice and hone their arguments before "Justices" drawn from the Georgetown faculty and leading D.C. Law firms. And Georgetown Law students have the privilege of sitting in on their preparations.

A group of five law students, two men and three women, are standing in front of the Supreme Court building. They are all dressed in professional business attire. The two men on the left are wearing suits, while the three women on the right are wearing blazers and trousers. They are all smiling at the camera. In the background, the Supreme Court building is visible, along with an American flag on a tall pole to the left. The sky is overcast.

“After hearing this case today I will be able to go back to class, debrief, talk about it more... This is incredible.”

— Jordan Dyer, L’25 (center)

“I saw my Constitutional Law professor argue at the Supreme Court, and then talked to him about the case the very next day. Where else could you do that?”

— Maddie Sloat, L’27 (right)

BIG SCHOOL BENEFITS

500+

Courses

51,000+

Global alumni network

752

Full-time and part-time
faculty

15

International exchange programs

12

Dual-degree programs

5

Joint J.D./LL.M programs

Tailoring Your Own Course of Study

Georgetown Law offers a wider array of courses than any other law school—more than 500 J.D. courses and seminars each year. In choosing your courses and other academic experiences—such as studying abroad—you have the flexibility to pursue a broad and diverse curriculum or a tailor-made program in one of our many specialty areas, including international, constitutional, tax, environmental, and health care law.

We offer two curricular options for 1L students, each providing the foundational knowledge and skills to prepare you well for advanced coursework and legal practice:

Curriculum A provides a thorough grounding in foundational subjects while enabling you to select from a diverse menu of six to seven elective courses in the spring semester, drawn from two major areas of law: legislative/administrative and international/comparative.

Curriculum B was developed to address three important changes in legal practice and theory: the emergence of the regulatory state; the overlap between the common law subjects of torts, contracts, and property; and the important influence of other disciplines such as economics, history, and philosophy.

“Georgetown’s class size gave me the opportunity to meet many wonderful people with diverse backgrounds and experiences. As a new law student, it was a relief to be able to easily connect with so many people who shared my interests and goals. I feel lucky to have cultivated strong, supportive relationships with my peers that will endure after we graduate.”

— Miya Driscoll, L’26

SMALL SCHOOL FEEL

300+

Small seminar classes

10:1

Student-faculty ratio
(full-time faculty)

3:1

Student-faculty ratio
(full-time and part-time
faculty)

94

Student organizations

750+

Journal members

Your introduction to the small-school feel of Georgetown Law begins in the first year, with your small section class of about 40-60 students and an even smaller Legal Practice seminar of about 25 students. In your upperclass years, you can choose from more than 300 small seminars, the majority of which enroll 25 or fewer students. Many of our students also pursue research and writing projects with individual professors.

Peer Advisors

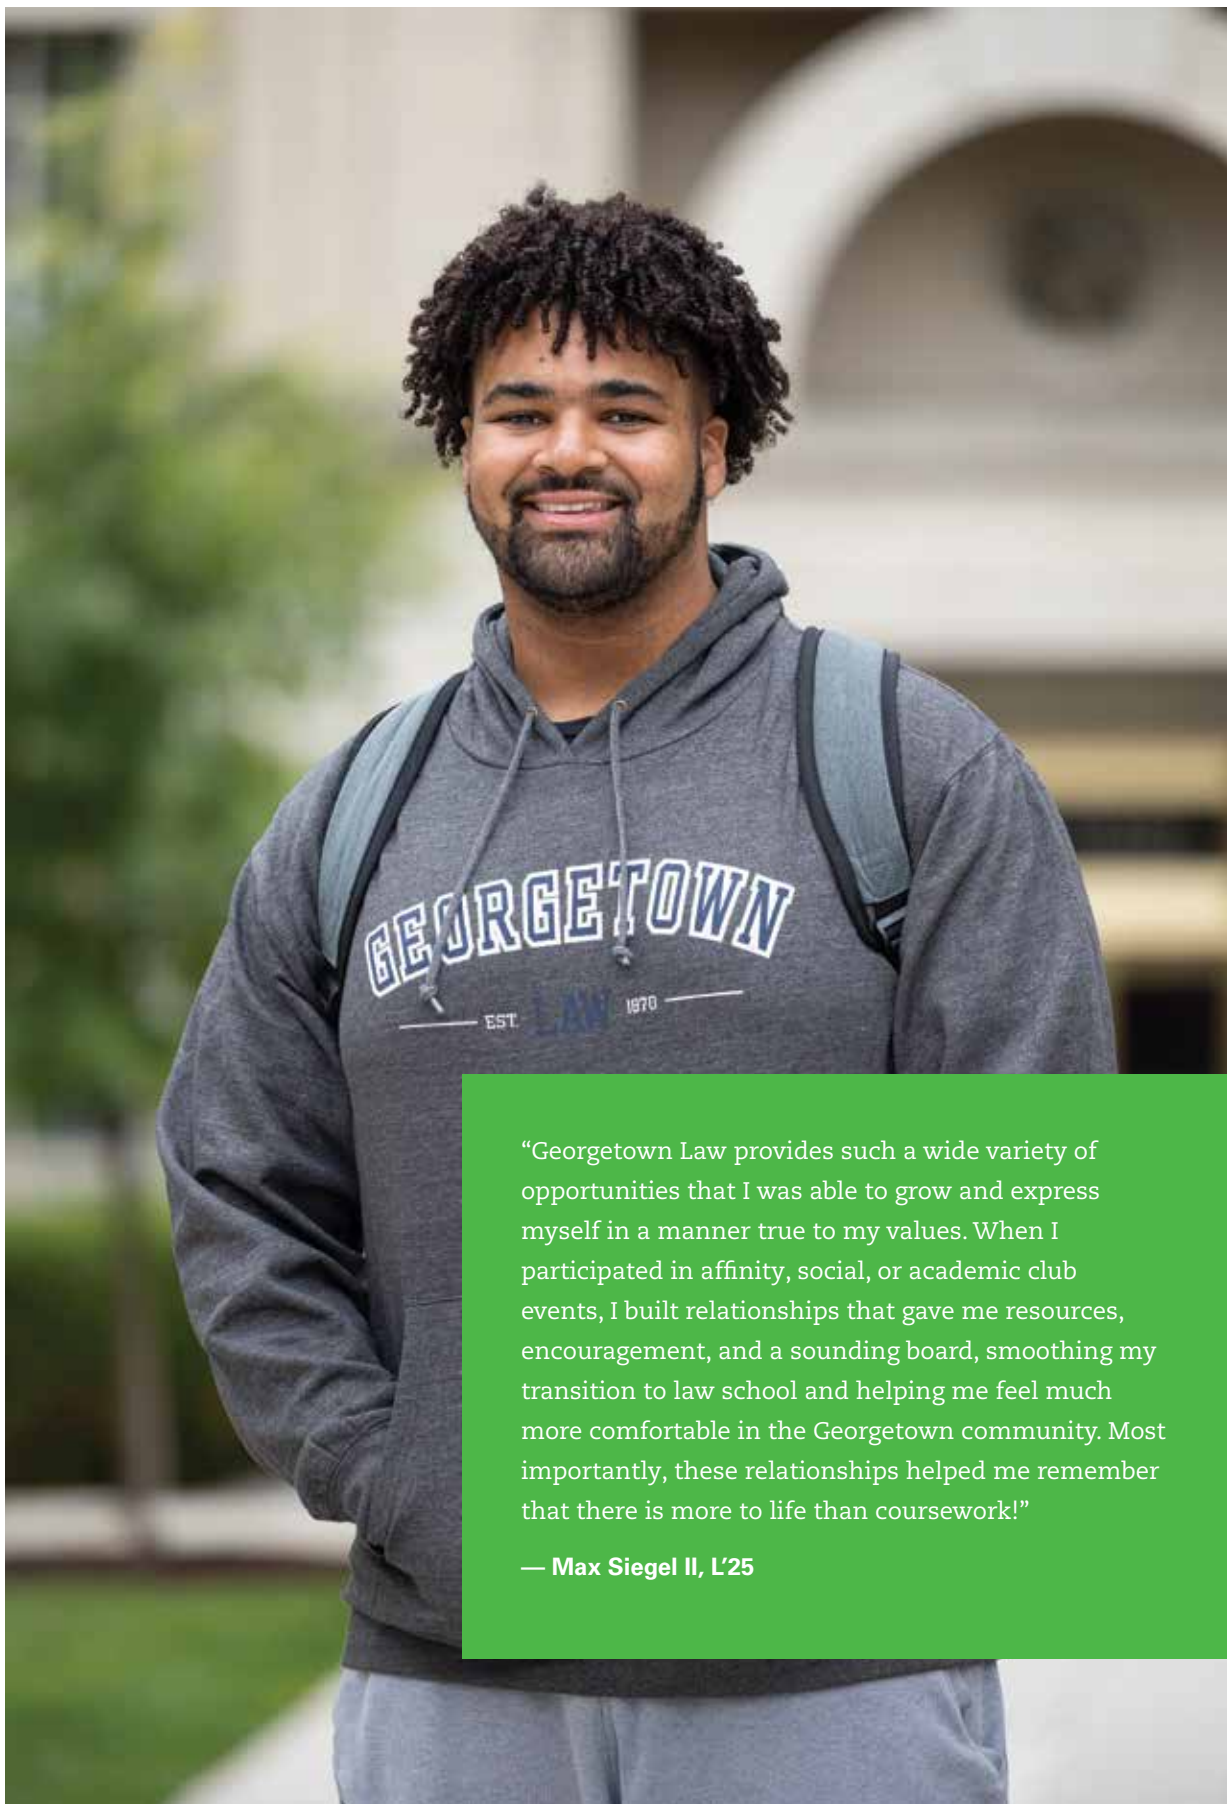

Each first-year student is assigned an upper-class Peer Advisor in the summer before classes begin to assist with the transition to law school. These students have a passion for helping others and can help you navigate academic courses, identify campus resources, form social and professional relationships, and find a healthy balance between classes, career development and personal well-being.

Barristers' Council

For more than seventy years, the Barristers' Council has been providing students at Georgetown Law with opportunities to hone their trial, appellate, and Alternate Dispute Resolution advocacy skills. Students who apply and are selected to join Barristers' Council begin intensive training to represent Georgetown Law at national and international advocacy competitions.

Law Journals

- American Criminal Law Review
- Georgetown Environmental Law Review
- Georgetown Immigration Law Journal
- Georgetown Journal of Gender and the Law
- Georgetown Journal of International Law
- Georgetown Journal of Law & Modern Critical Race Perspectives
- Georgetown Journal of Law & Public Policy
- Georgetown Journal of Legal Ethics
- Georgetown Journal on Poverty Law & Policy
- Georgetown Law Journal
- Georgetown LawTechnology Review
- Journal of National Security Law & Policy

“Georgetown Law provides such a wide variety of opportunities that I was able to grow and express myself in a manner true to my values. When I participated in affinity, social, or academic club events, I built relationships that gave me resources, encouragement, and a sounding board, smoothing my transition to law school and helping me feel much more comfortable in the Georgetown community. Most importantly, these relationships helped me remember that there is more to life than coursework!”

— Max Siegel II, L’25

AN ENGAGED COMMUNITY

Global Law Scholars

Approximately 20 incoming J.D. students each year are selected for the Global Law Scholars program, which prepares students for transnational practice by combining language skills and cultural familiarity with rigorous and directed legal training. Students can also study for a semester at our Center for Transnational Legal Studies in London or through another semester abroad program. The Law Center also offers a joint degree with Institut d'Études Politique de Paris (Sciences Po).

Business Law Scholars

The Business Law Scholars program is designed to help students gain extensive practical experience to better prepare for a career in corporate law, starting a business, or becoming a partner in a law practice. Through mentorship, participation in speakers series, business simulations and contests—including with the McDonough School of Business—and with guaranteed access to some of the more highly sought-after business-related courses, this cohort will develop vital business-related skills that will position students well for long-term success in business-related roles.

Technology Law & Policy Scholars

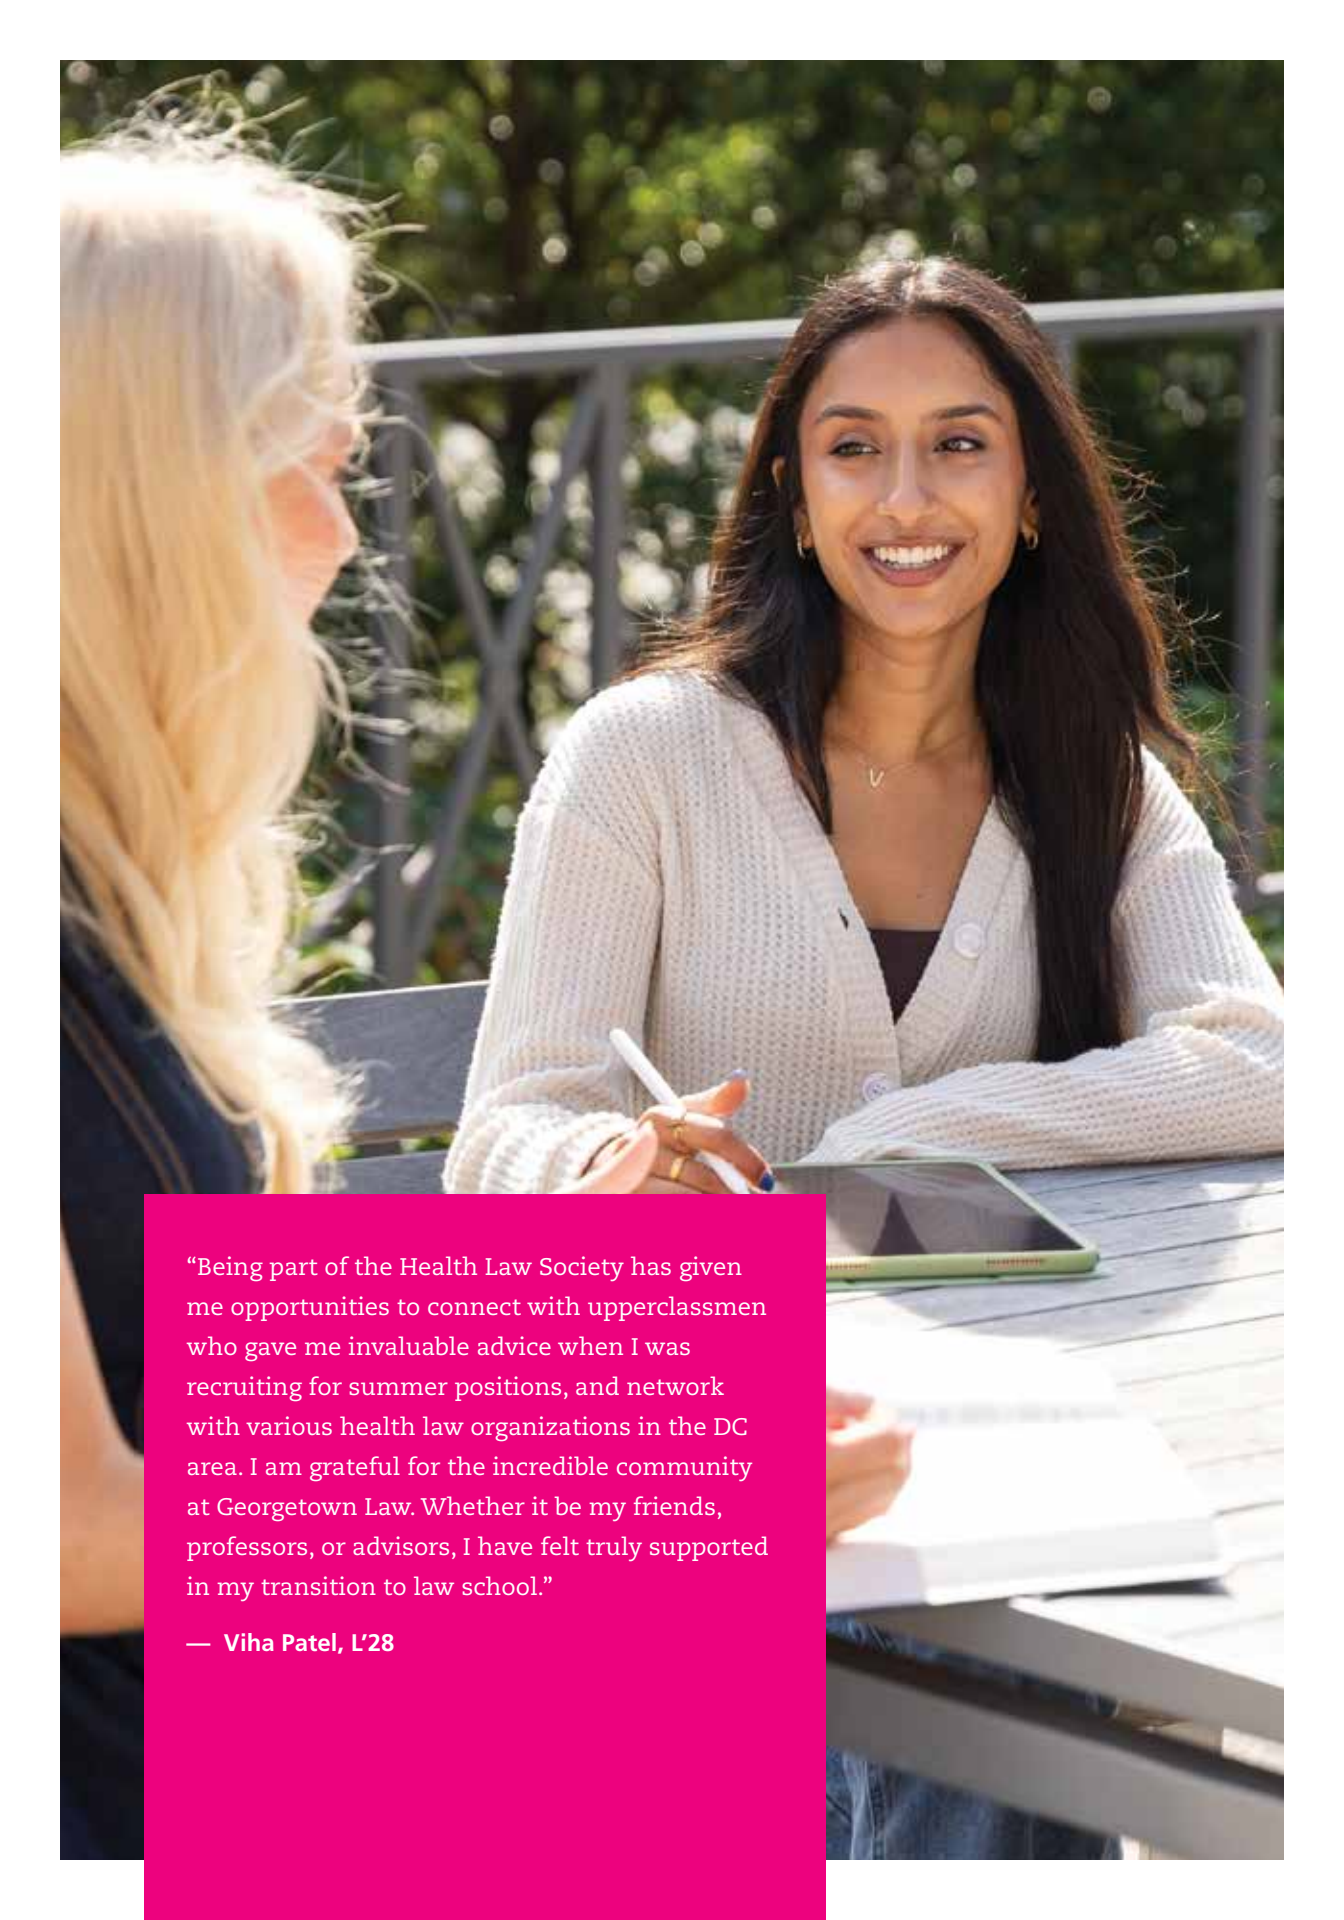

The Technology Law & Policy Scholars program gives students the opportunity to engage in rigorous academic work, to develop their technological skills, and to deepen their understanding of policy debates related to new and emerging technologies. Scholars will have the opportunity to work in a hands-on environment, pairing practical experience with a solid theoretical foundation.

Public Interest Law Scholars

The Public Interest Law Scholars Program at Georgetown Law provides multidimensional support to a cohort of JD students demonstrating extraordinary commitment to pursuing a public interest career after graduation. Through a variety of carefully tailored program benefits, the program aims to reduce financial, informational, and other barriers to public service for students displaying an exceptional level of intentionality and potential to use their law degree as a tool for change. In doing so, the program also aims to support and empower a cohort of public interest scholars to serve as leaders and ambassadors for public interest work in the Georgetown Law community, cultivating an ethic of service and contributing to broader efforts to reduce barriers to public interest careers.

RISE Program

RISE is designed to serve students who may have had less exposure to the legal profession before applying to law school. The program is intended to help students form community with other entering students before classes begin; obtain the essential academic and professional skills that law school and the legal profession demand; and build relationships with peer mentors, teaching fellows, faculty, staff, and alumni across the Georgetown Law community.

“Being part of the Health Law Society has given me opportunities to connect with upperclassmen who gave me invaluable advice when I was recruiting for summer positions, and network with various health law organizations in the DC area. I am grateful for the incredible community at Georgetown Law. Whether it be my friends, professors, or advisors, I have felt truly supported in my transition to law school.”

— Viha Patel, L’28

WHERE LAW MEETS POLICY

20+

Centers and Institutes

Taking full advantage of our D.C. location, Georgetown Law has more than 20 Centers and Institutes that are hubs of expertise right here on campus. Many are multidisciplinary, working in collaboration with Georgetown University's preeminent graduate and professional schools.

150+

Students mentored

450+

Presentations, workshops and academic program events

100+

Research assistants hired

700+

Total publications produced

500+

Media Appearances/Citations in print

Centers & Institutes

- Center for Asian Law
- Center for Innovations in Community Safety
- Center for the Advancement of the Rule of Law in the Americas
- Center on Congress and Democracy
- Center on Ethics and the Legal Profession
- Center on Gender Justice & Opportunity
- Center on Inclusive Trade and Development
- Center on National Security
- Center on Privacy & Technology
- Center on Transnational Business and the Law
- Denny Center for Democratic Capitalism
- Georgetown Center for the Constitution
- Georgetown Center on Poverty and Inequality
- Georgetown Climate Center
- Georgetown University Health Justice Alliance
- Human Rights Institute
- Institute for Constitutional Advocacy and Protection
- Institute for Technology Law and Policy
- Institute of International Economic Law
- International Criminal Justice Initiative
- O'Neill Institute for National and Global Health Law
- Supreme Court Institute
- Workers' Rights Institute

“Georgetown takes the technology side seriously, treats it as central to how the law actually functions in 2026, and has unusual faculty depth around AI, privacy, and platform regulation. That combination made the Tech Law Scholars program, and Georgetown more broadly the obvious choice for my next career move.”

— Stuart Leach, L’28

“Today’s human rights problems are urgent and complex, and the world needs passionate, innovative advocates with the intellectual foundation, real-world experience and practical skills necessary to tackle them. That’s why I came to Georgetown – to help prepare the next generation of human rights lawyers to meet those challenges.”

— Elisa Massamino, Visiting Professor of Law; Executive Director, Human Rights Institute

WHERE THEORY MEETS PRACTICE

330+

Students participated in law clinics

1,411

Students participated in simulation courses

323

Students participated in practicum courses (project-based and fieldwork)

Clinics

- Appellate Courts Immersion Clinic
- Appellate Litigation Clinic
- Center for Applied Legal Studies (CALS)
- Civil Justice Clinic
- Civil Rights Clinic
- Communications and Technology Law Clinic
- Criminal Defense and Prisoner Advocacy Clinic
- Criminal Justice Clinic
- Domestic Violence Clinic
- Environmental Law and Justice Clinic
- Federal Legislation Clinic
- Health Justice Alliance Clinic
- Intellectual Property and Information Policy Clinic
- Juvenile Justice Clinic
- Racial Equity in Education Law and Policy Clinic
- Rising for Justice (Housing Advocacy and Litigation Clinic)
- Social Enterprise and Nonprofit Law Clinic

Our top-rated experiential learning programs allow our students to take classroom theory and apply it to real-life legal challenges right here in Washington, D.C. — immersing themselves in public policy, corporate, civil and criminal law.

Clinics

Our 17 clinics provide you with a unique opportunity to advise or represent actual clients, both here in D.C. and around the world, while simultaneously receiving intensive supervision and feedback from faculty.

Practicums

Focused on particular areas of the law, practicum courses allow you to work on real-world projects and explore related legal theory and developments in companion seminars. Choose from approximately 28 practicum courses in areas as diverse as policing reform, wrongful convictions, prosecuting war crimes and atrocities, international human rights, election law, climate change, poverty law, reproductive health rights, corporate law, and much more.

Externships

Each year, more than 400 students participate in the J.D. Externship Program. Combining practical classroom experiences with fieldwork at a government, judicial, or nonprofit entity of your choice, the J.D. Externship Program gives you the opportunity to see law in action, build legal skills, develop your professional network, and learn more about a legal practice area.

Simulations

In our simulation courses, you step into the lawyer's role in a wide range of hypothetical scenarios. Courses focus on skills such as negotiations, mediation, trial practice, and advising corporate boards. Simulation courses are offered year round, including before the regular spring semester begins as part of the Week One Program. Week One courses allow students to act as lawyers in a variety of hypothetical settings, including at the World Health Assembly, in an extradition proceeding in federal court, and in a cybersecurity crisis simulation.

“The Juvenile Justice Clinic provides our students with an opportunity to have an impact on children who are arguably in some of the most difficult times of their lives. Students learn skills that are not only critical to being a great public defender but are also transferable across all types of lawyering.”

— Kristin Henning, the Blume Professor of Law, and Director, Juvenile Justice Clinic and Initiative

PRACTICE READY ON DAY 1

Class of 2025 Employment

97%

Grads employed within 10 months of graduation

65

Judicial clerkships

468

Law firms

72

Public Interest

39

Government

17

Business & Industry

18

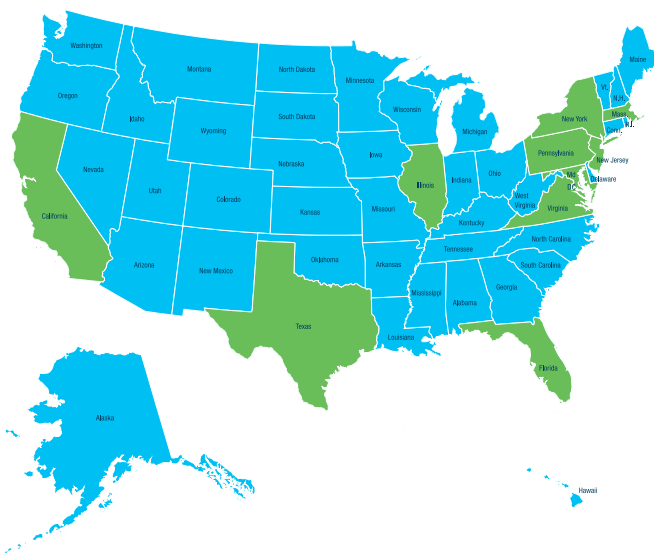

Further study

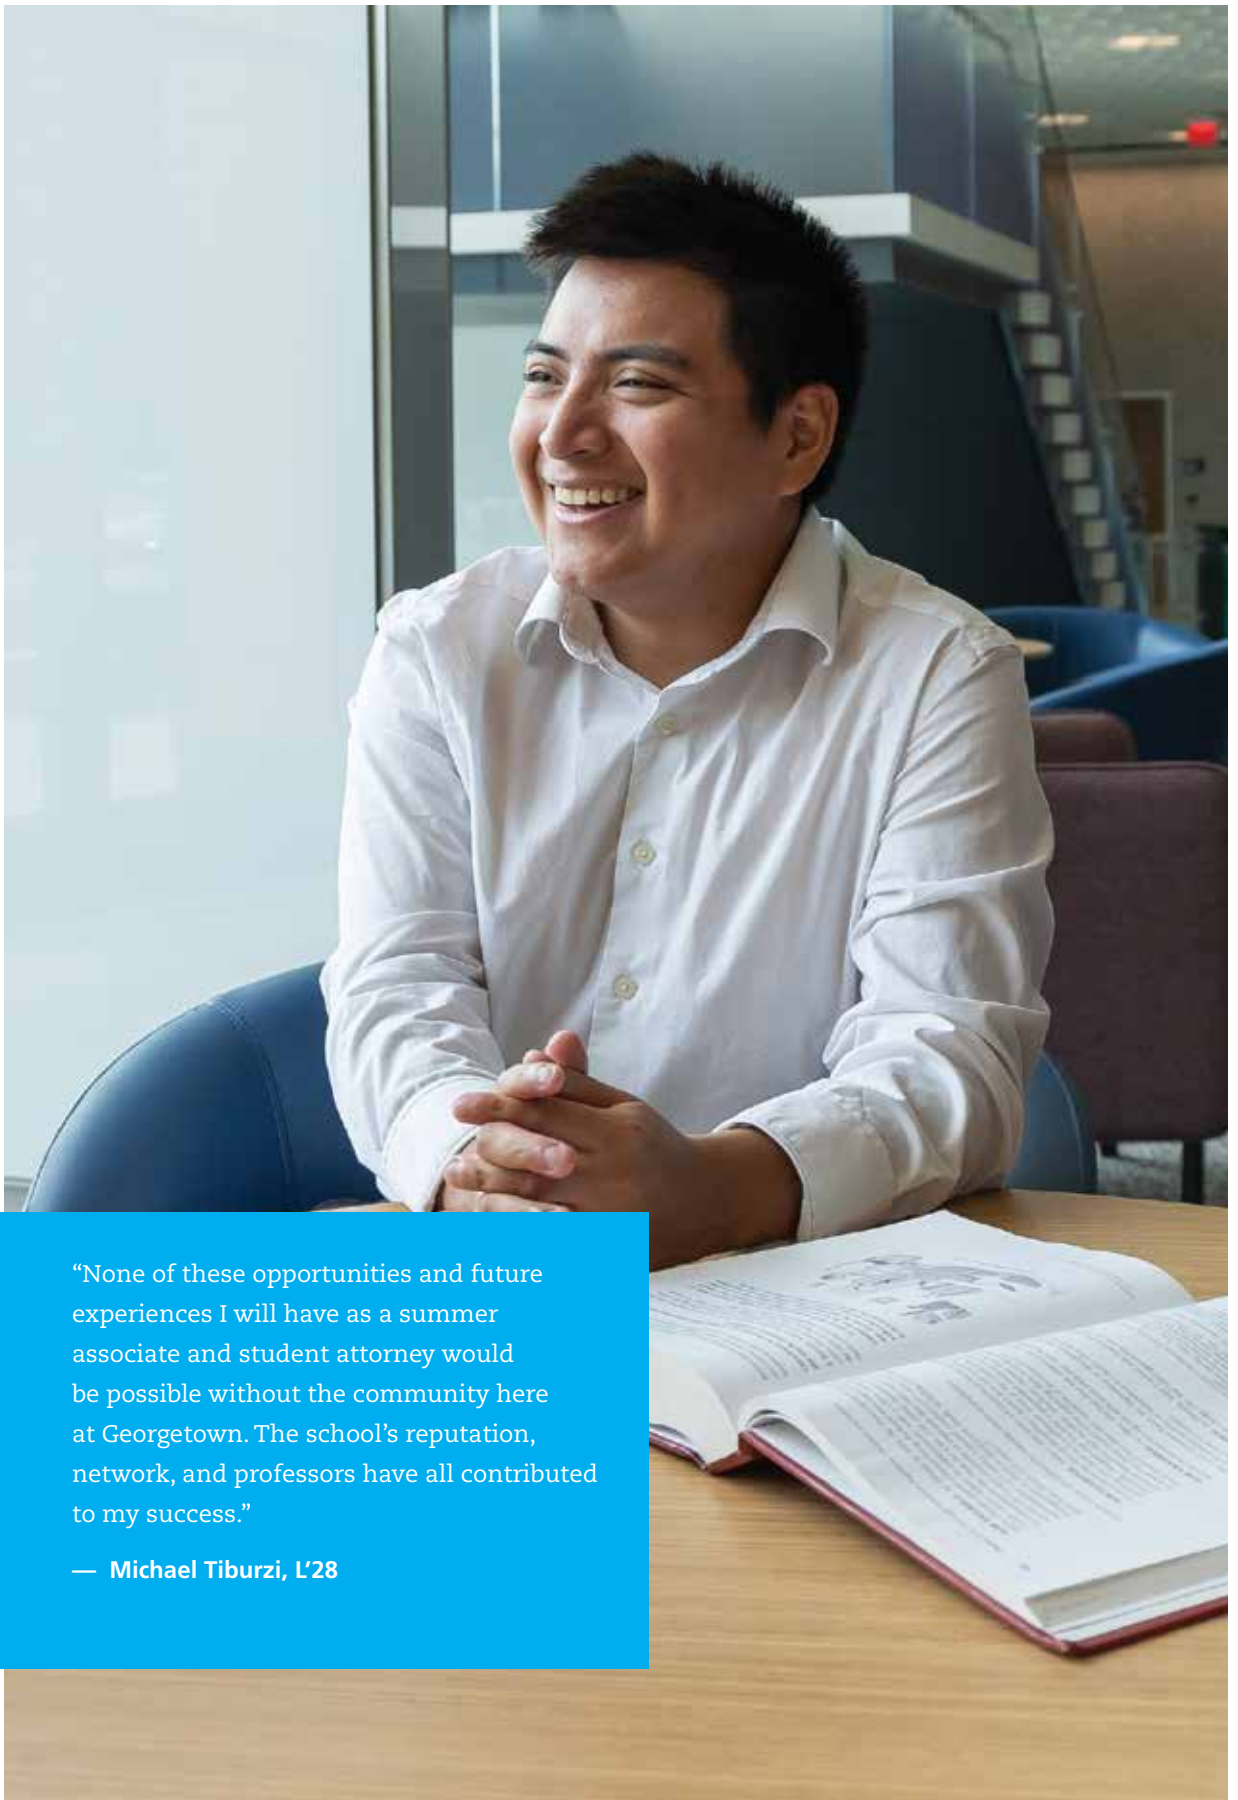

A Head Start in Your Career Path

From Top 100 law firms to public interest, Georgetown students are in high demand—both for summer jobs and for full-time employment after graduation. Employers know that our students are practice-ready on Day 1.

Our JD Careers Team (composed of the Office of Career Strategy and the Office of Public Interest and Community Service) works closely with individual students to create job search strategies unique to their backgrounds and interests. Whether it's supporting students who are participating in our school-sponsored recruitment programs or helping students navigate direct applications to employers, Georgetown Law students receive the benefit of resources from the largest Careers team in the country. We offer one of the most extensive on-campus law firm recruiting programs in the nation. Combined with our other private sector, government, and public interest interview programs, we schedule more than 5,000 interview opportunities for our students each year.

Top 10 places where graduates go

“None of these opportunities and future experiences I will have as a summer associate and student attorney would be possible without the community here at Georgetown. The school’s reputation, network, and professors have all contributed to my success.”

— Michael Tiburzi, L’28

IN THE PUBLIC INTEREST

19%

Grads going straight to public service jobs (average over 2020-25)

~1,000

Public interest alumni currently participating in our Loan Repayment Assistance Program (LRAP)

20,000+

Hours of pro bono work performed by the Class of 2026

553

Public service externships

450

Students received guaranteed summer public interest funding

Georgetown Law has long had a remarkable record of launching graduates in public interest careers. In recent years, about one in five Georgetown Law graduates have gone on to public service jobs upon graduation, among the highest of all top law schools. Georgetown Law has facilitated numerous entry-level fellowships for aspiring public interest attorneys and supports the nation's largest public interest-specific advising office to place students and alumni in public service.

Office of Public Interest and Community Service

Georgetown is among just a few law schools in the country that provides a dedicated public interest career center: our Office of Public Interest and Community Service (OPICS).

As a student here you can consult our OPICS team about government and public interest placements, career planning, networking and recruiting opportunities, and much more. Because Washington, D.C. is the heart of the nation's public interest community, you'll have access to a vast array of opportunities with non-profit organizations and government agencies.

Public Interest Corps

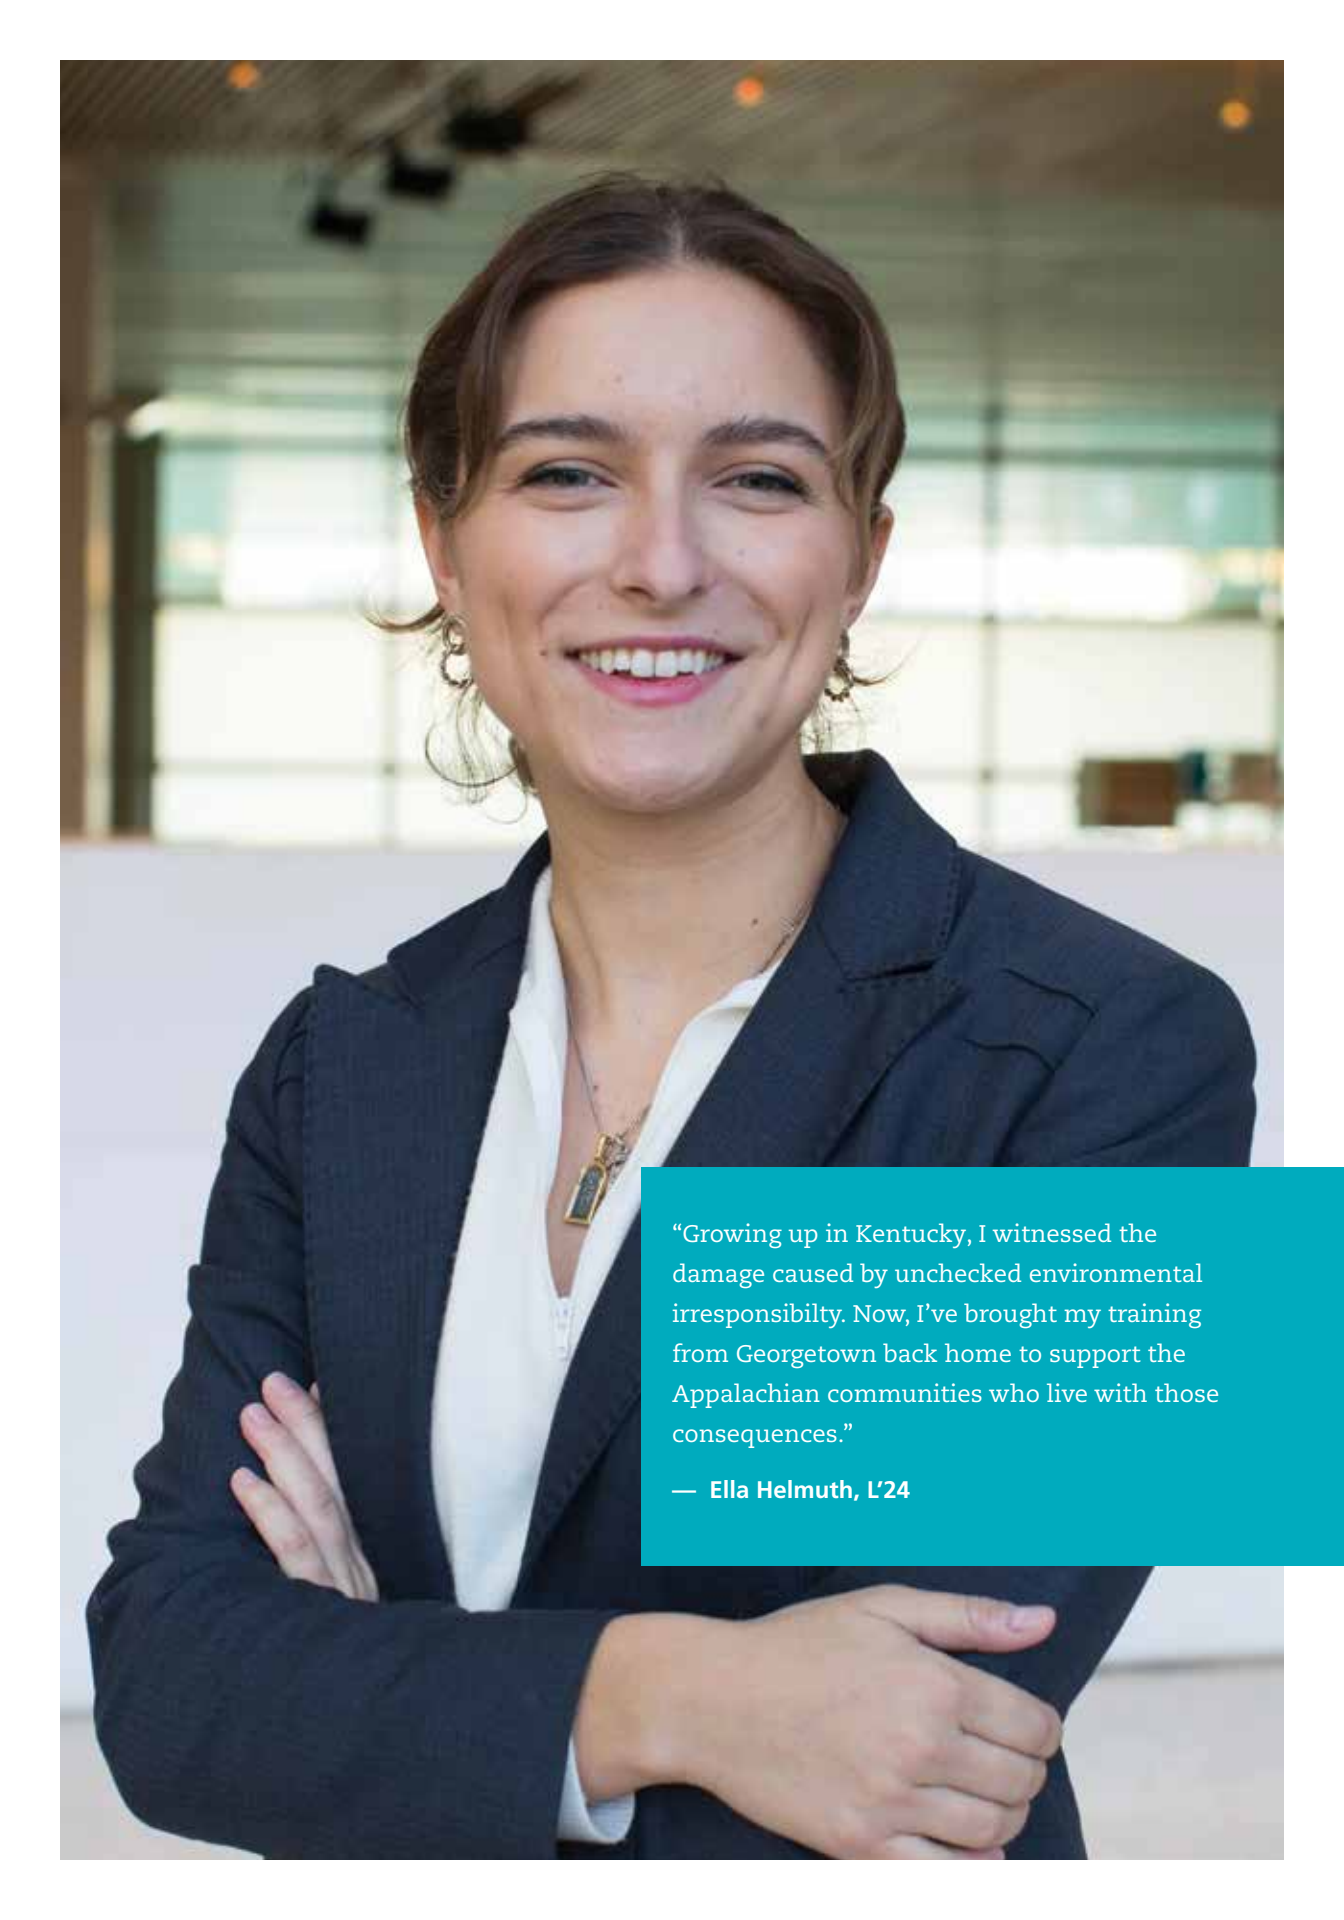

All incoming J.D. students are eligible to apply to Georgetown's Public Interest Corps. As a participant, you receive enhanced public interest academic, career, and community support, including alumni mentorship and specialized career counseling.

Delaney Post-Graduate Residency Program

Launched in 2016, the Delaney Post-Graduate Residency Program is a training and mentoring program for graduates participating in year-long fellowships in the public sector. This program was made possible through a generous gift from April McClain-Delaney (L'89) and Rep. John Delaney (L'88).

Public Interest Law Scholars

The Public Interest Law Scholars program provides additional financial, academic, and other support to selected students each year who demonstrate a commitment to public service.

A portrait of Ella Helmuth, a young woman with brown hair pulled back, smiling at the camera. She is wearing a dark blue blazer over a white collared shirt. Her arms are crossed. The background is a blurred indoor space with large windows and modern lighting.

“Growing up in Kentucky, I witnessed the damage caused by unchecked environmental irresponsibility. Now, I’ve brought my training from Georgetown back home to support the Appalachian communities who live with those consequences.”

— Ella Helmuth, L’24

EVENING PROGRAM

78

Evening Program students
(2025-2026)

4

Of the last five Law
Center students to secure
Supreme Court clerkships, four are graduates of the
Evening Program

100%

1E Evening program required courses taught by
full-time faculty

Georgetown Law's J.D. Evening Program offers a unique opportunity to earn a degree from one of the top U.S. law schools without giving up your full-time job. You'll study with the same world-class faculty as full-time students, fully supported by the Law Center's career and academic support services. At the same time, you'll have the flexibility to complete your J.D. in three to four years, with class times that fit your working schedule.

Evening students earn the same degree as day students. They take the same required courses, including experiential education requirements; participate in the same extracurricular activities, from our top-rated journals to mock trial competitions; and are equally successful in securing career and clerkship opportunities.

All first-year evening students attend classes starting at 5:45 p.m. on weekday evenings. Upper-class students may take courses that meet after work, during the day, or a combination of both. Upper-class electives are also offered on weekends.

“Drawn from people who are already making their mark in the worlds of the government, the military, and numerous other professionals, evening students are looking to the law as the next logical step in their careers. They bring work and life experience, ability to manage multiple projects and deadlines, and a sense of the real world into the classroom.”

— Michael J. Cedrone, Professor of Law and Director of the Evening Program

“The evening program was an ideal fit for me. The flexible curriculum allowed me to continue my work as a pediatric critical care physician and public health researcher throughout law school. I was also able to focus my legal education on my areas of interest: health justice and health policy as well as legal barriers to health such as poverty and inequity. ”

— Dr. Katherine Hoops, L’25

“I learn as much from my evening section classmates as I do the outstanding professors. Georgetown Law’s evening program allows me to continue my service while realizing my lifelong goal of completing law school. Georgetown Law’s community is second to none and the evening program allows me to be a part of it while maintaining my professional life.”

— Lieutenant Colonel Robert Mobley, L’27

APPLY

Applying to law school is the first step in a transformative journey. The Georgetown Law Admissions Office is ready to guide you as you begin planning your life as a legal professional.

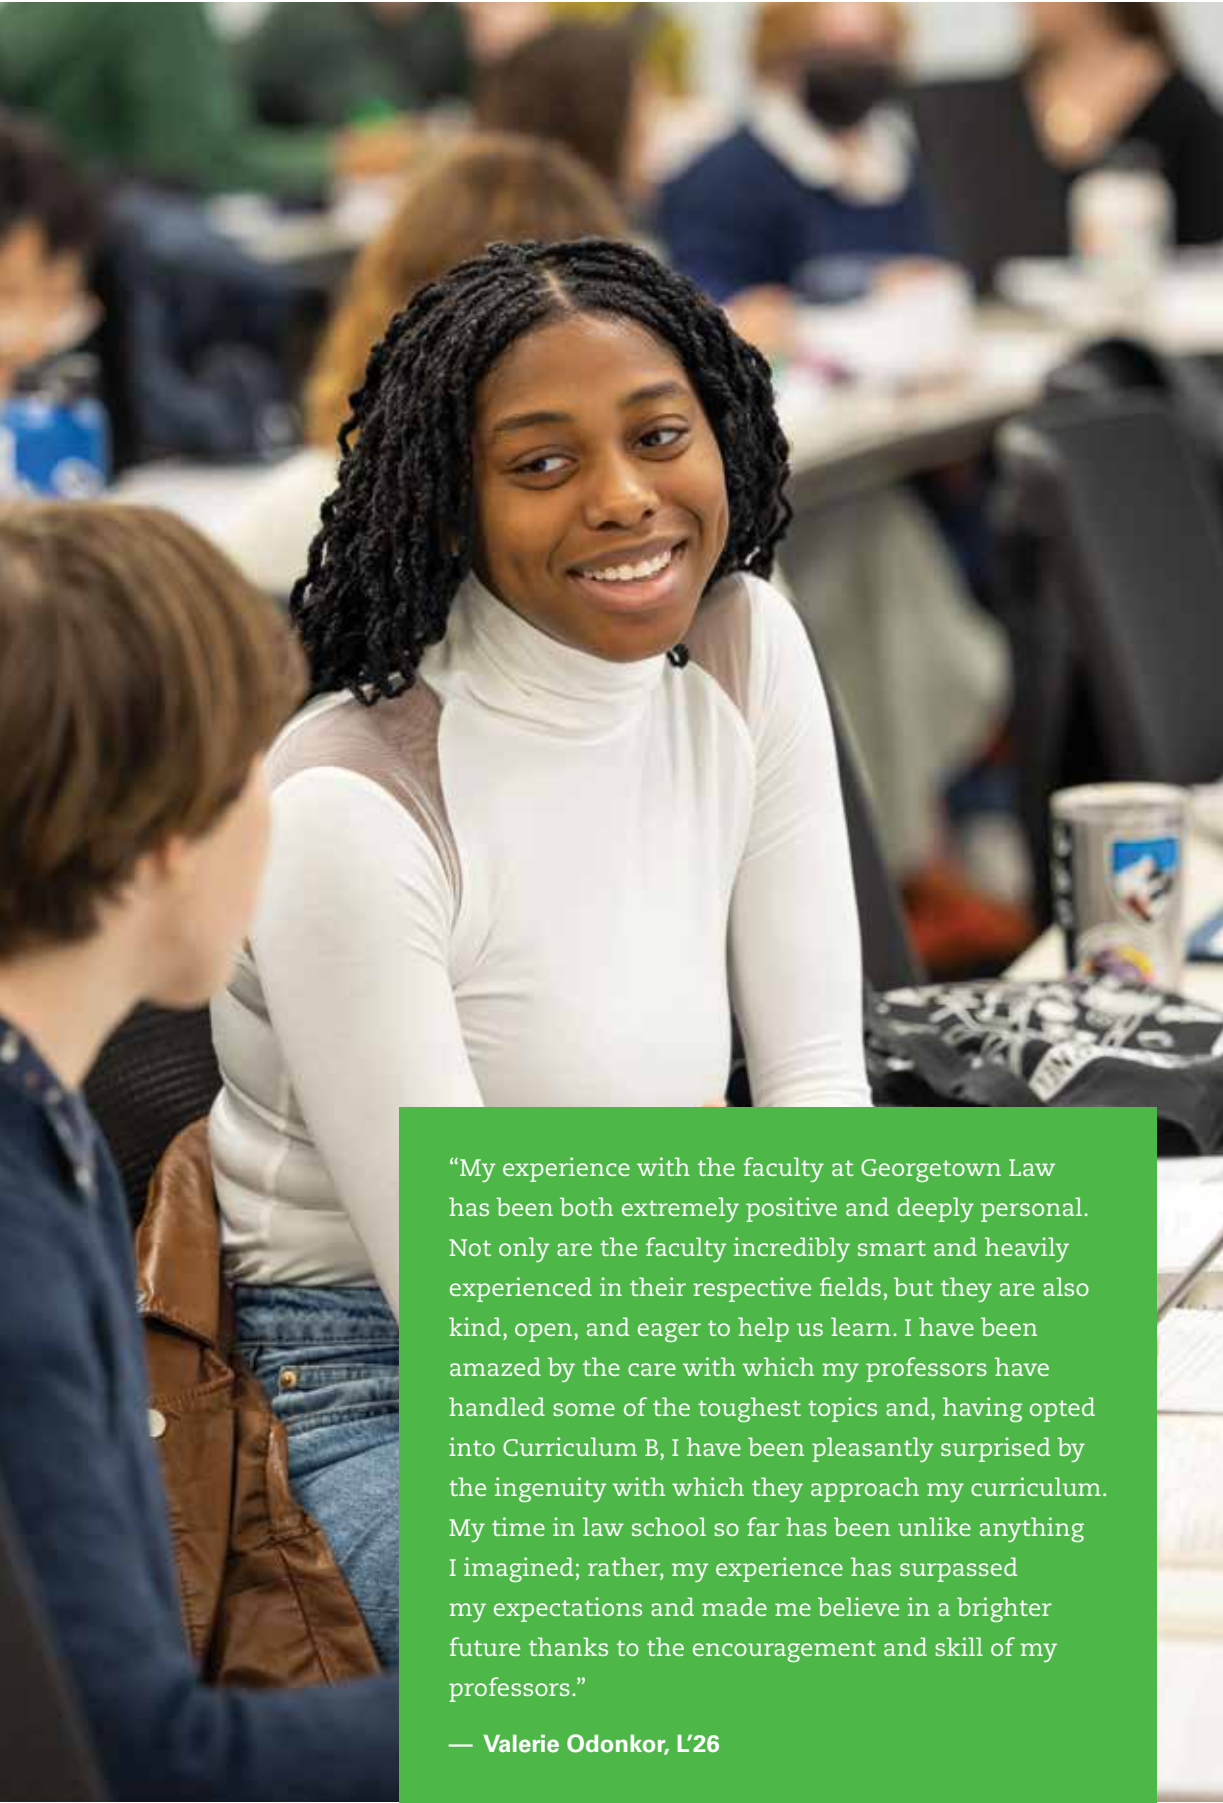

The Admissions Committee takes great pride in our holistic and personal approach to the admissions process. Our goal is to build a vibrant, engaged, and passionate community at Georgetown – and we want you to join us!

We seek to admit students who will succeed at Georgetown, would benefit from a legal education here, and will contribute to our community. There are several important components to the application, including the academic record and test scores; however, the Admissions Committee does not use numerical cutoffs, and it also considers heavily other requirements, such as the applicant's personal statement, letter of recommendation, extracurricular and volunteer activities, graduate work, and professional experience.

The personal statement and optional answers are an opportunity for you to share your individual story with us. We encourage you to be open and authentic throughout the admissions process so that we can get to know you!

Thank you for your interest in Georgetown Law. We invite you to learn more about our exceptional community of faculty, alumni, and students, and we look forward to reading your application.

Andy Cornblatt
The Metta Grokenberger Krach Dean of Admissions

“My experience with the faculty at Georgetown Law has been both extremely positive and deeply personal. Not only are the faculty incredibly smart and heavily experienced in their respective fields, but they are also kind, open, and eager to help us learn. I have been amazed by the care with which my professors have handled some of the toughest topics and, having opted into Curriculum B, I have been pleasantly surprised by the ingenuity with which they approach my curriculum. My time in law school so far has been unlike anything I imagined; rather, my experience has surpassed my expectations and made me believe in a brighter future thanks to the encouragement and skill of my professors.”

— Valerie Odonkor, L'26

Georgetown Law's commitment to providing a personalized education begins with the admissions experience. Admissions at Georgetown is far more than a numbers game—we understand the importance of getting to know you by reading each and every part of your application.

We're here to answer any questions you may have about our school and our application process.

Who May Apply

Applicants who will possess a U.S. baccalaureate degree from an accredited college or university or the equivalent from a foreign institution prior to registration day are eligible for admission to Georgetown Law as candidates for the J.D. degree or any joint degree programs. Candidates may apply for admission to the Full-Time Division, the Part-Time/Evening Division, or "Both."

The American Bar Association requires that we advise applicants that, in addition to a bar examination, there are character, fitness, and other qualifications for admission to the bar in every U.S. jurisdiction.

Early Decision

The Early Decision process is designed for applicants who are certain that Georgetown Law is their first-choice school. Offers of admission are binding through this process. Although candidates admitted under Early Decision are committed to attending Georgetown and will not receive their financial aid information before their admissions decision, please be assured that you will be considered for merit scholarships and need-based financial aid in the same manner, and on the same timeline, as all other admitted students.

Regular Decision

The Admissions Committee reviews applications on a rolling basis as they are completed. We begin accepting applications in early September. It is to your advantage to complete your application as early as possible in the admissions cycle.

Application Checklist

- ☐ Application Form (LSAC electronic application strongly preferred)
- ☐ Nonrefundable $90 application fee (see our website for fee waiver information)
- ☐ Personal statement and résumé
- ☐ LSAT, GRE, or GMAT score (applicants seeking to enroll in the Evening Program only who do not have a currently valid LSAT score may apply on a test-optional basis)
- ☐ Transcripts from all undergraduate and graduate schools attended
- ☐ One required letter of recommendation (more than one may be submitted)
- ☐ Optional responses and/or video

2025 J.D. Entering Class

13,924

Applicants

672

Students Enrolled

594

Full-time Students

78

Part-time Students

46

States + DC

21

Foreign Countries

231

Colleges & Universities

59%

Female

38%

Students of Color

171/3.93

Median LSAT/GPA

173/3.98

75th Percentile

166/3.75

25th Percentile

Financing Your Legal Education

We are committed to ensuring that you can pursue a legal education regardless of your financial circumstances. In recent years, approximately 60% of our students have received grants or scholarships.

The professionals in our Financial Aid office are here to guide you through all stages of the financial aid process. Our website contains detailed information about the types of assistance we offer, plus step by-step instructions in the How to Apply section. We encourage you to review our website and to reach out to us directly to help answer any financial-related questions you may have.

Types of Financial Aid

Dean's Tuition Grant

Dean's Tuition Grants are awarded based on financial need to approximately one-third of the full-time entering class who apply.

Education Loans and Federal Work Study

The Federal Direct Loan Program is the primary source of education loan funding for Georgetown Law students. Students may also be eligible for other private student loans and federally funded work-study opportunities.

Loan Repayment Assistance Program (LRAP)

Georgetown Law's loan repayment assistance program provides our graduates working in qualified public interest or government positions with assistance repaying their law school loans. Our LRAP was one of the first of its kind, and it is among the strongest in the country.

Guaranteed Summer Public Interest Funding

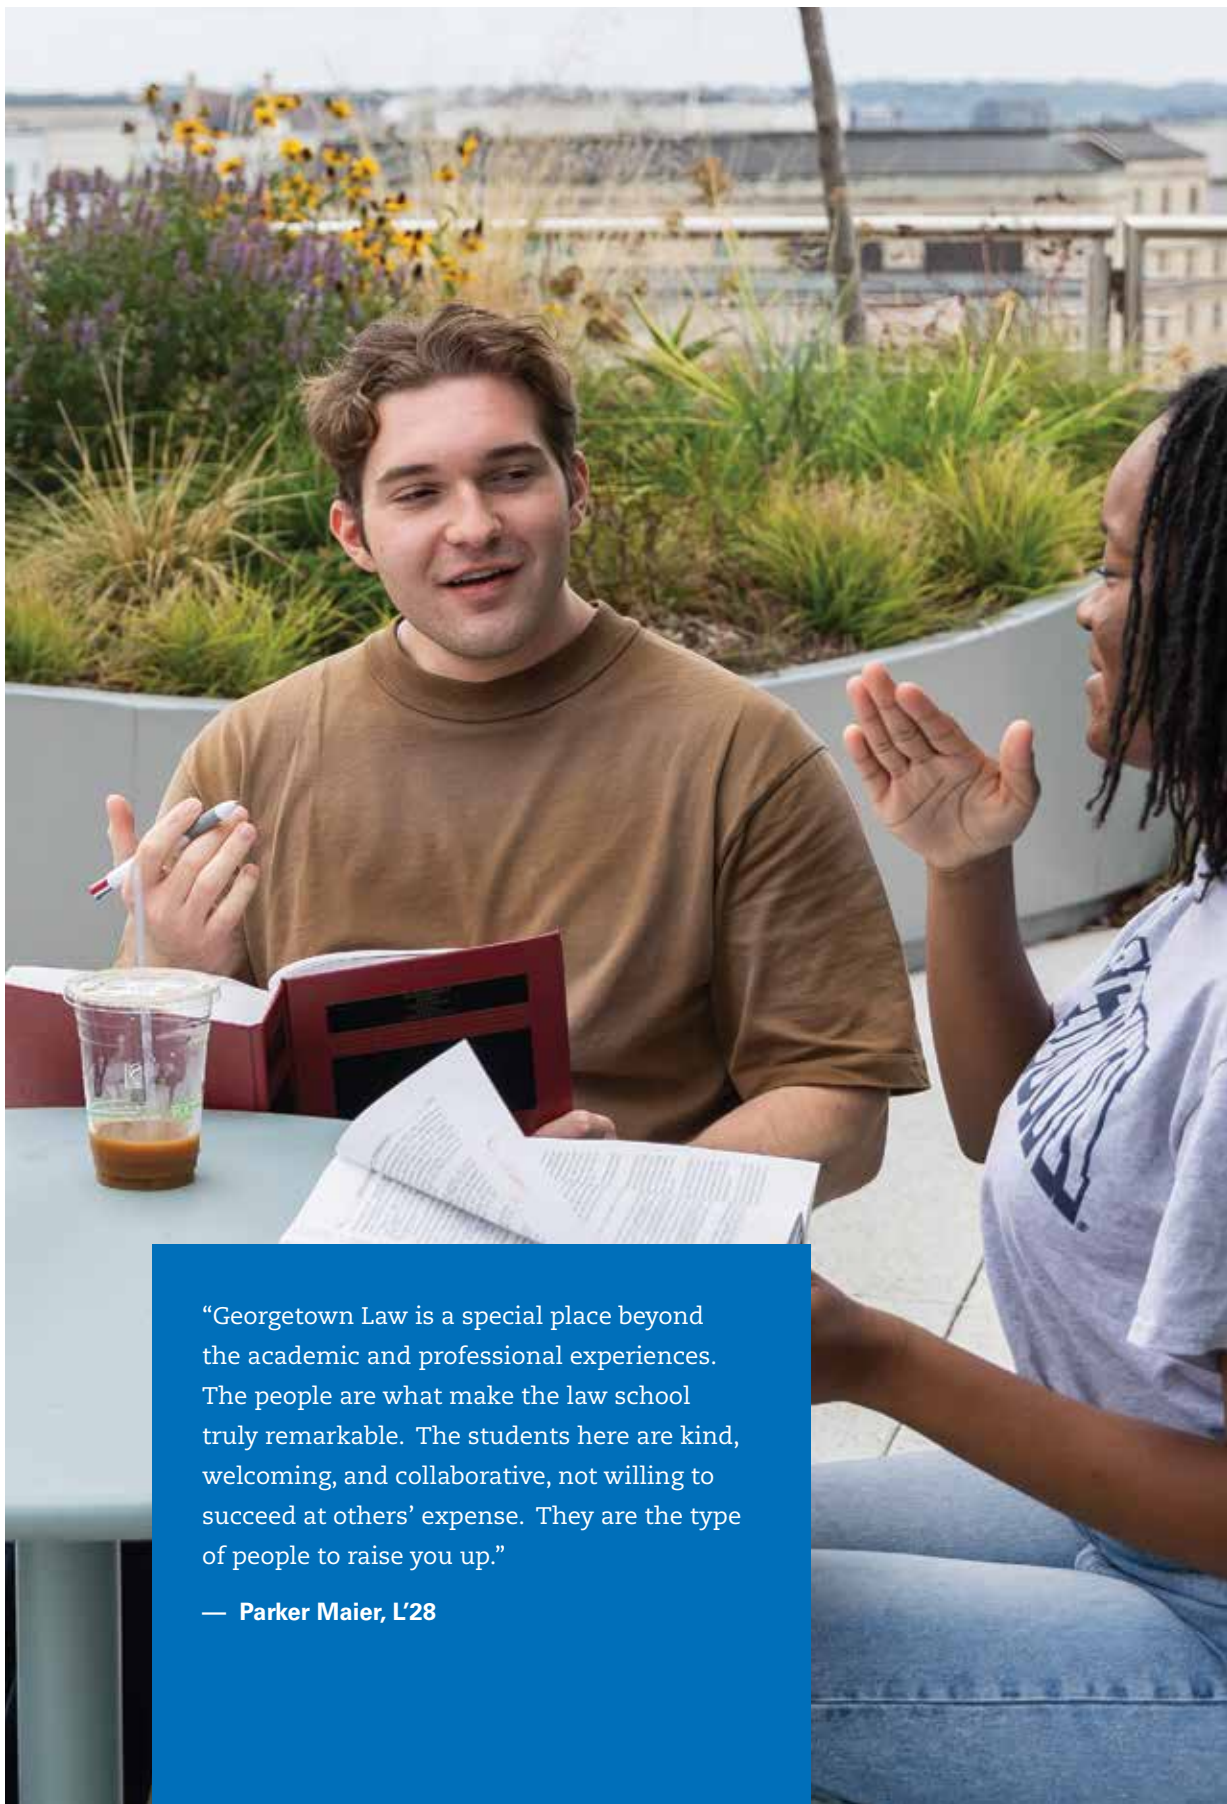

Georgetown offers guaranteed summer funding for J.D. students engaged in public service summer activities in the form of Public Service Summer Grants.

Dates and Deadlines

www.law.georgetown.edu/admissions-aid/jd-admissions/first-year-applicants/dates-deadlines/

Financial Aid FAQs

www.law.georgetown.edu/admissions-aid/financial-aid/faqs/

“Georgetown Law is a special place beyond the academic and professional experiences. The people are what make the law school truly remarkable. The students here are kind, welcoming, and collaborative, not willing to succeed at others’ expense. They are the type of people to raise you up.”

— Parker Maier, L’28

EXPLORING CAMPUS

Edward Bennett Williams Law Library

The Law Library is one of the largest academic law libraries in the nation, housing a robust collection of both primary and secondary materials in U.S., foreign, and international law. The Law Library's digital and special collections include materials from the 13th century to the present. Visitors on self-guided tours are not permitted to enter the Law Library.

Sarah & Bernard Gewirz Center

The Gewirz Student Center offers one, two, or three-bedroom apartments for current students. Gewirz also houses a childcare center and a variety of gathering places for lectures and social events. To see a model apartment, ask Residence Life on the ground floor.

Bernard P. McDonough Hall

McDonough Hall, with its lecture halls, faculty offices, and student service space, is at the center of our five-building campus.

Scott K. Ginsburg Sport & Fitness Center

The Ginsburg Sport & Fitness Center provides a full array of athletic facilities to students and alumni as an important part of Georgetown Law's focus on wellness and cura personalis – care of the whole person.

Eric E. Hotung International Law Building

The Hotung building brings all of the components of the international programs under one roof. The building houses classrooms, seminar rooms, and faculty and program offices, as well as the O'Neill Alumni Center and the Supreme Court Institute (SCI) Moot Court room.

500 First

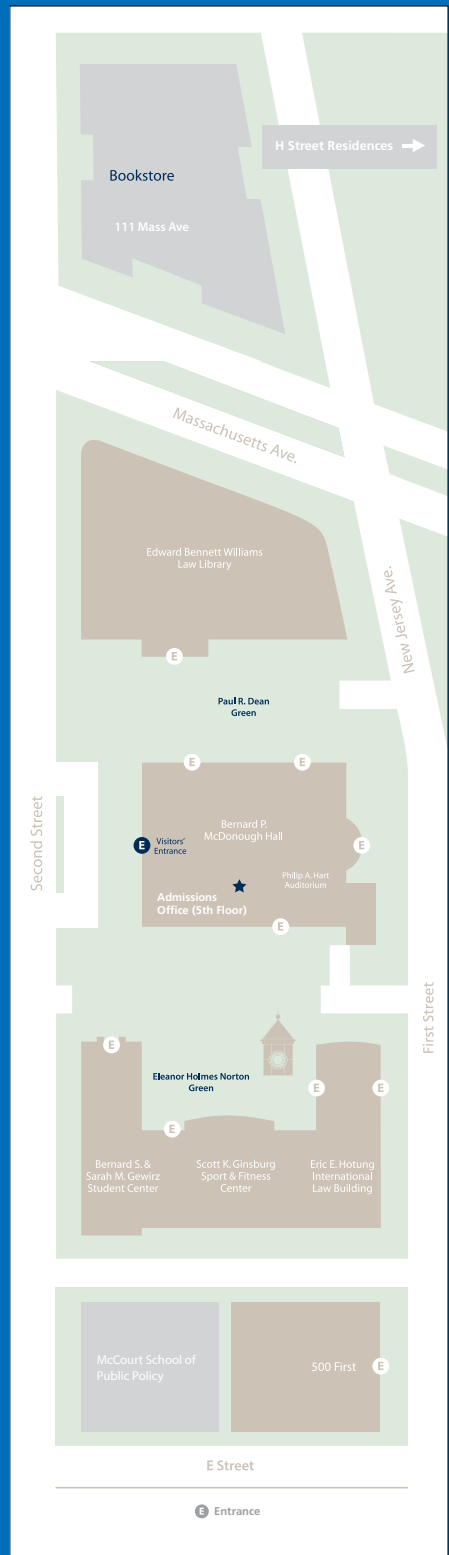

500 First Street offers a mix of classrooms, offices, and communal spaces. The building provides opportunities for cross-campus collaboration on innovative policy solutions across fields including health, climate, technology, education, and human rights. It is the home to many of Georgetown Law's Centers and Institutes.

111 Massachusetts Avenue NW

Serving as a hub for interdisciplinary partnership and a wide range of academic offerings, this multi-use facility supports the Earth Commons Institute, the McDonough School of Business, the School of Continuing Studies, the School of Health, the School of Nursing, and various executive education initiatives. The building also contains a Georgetown University Bookstore.

125 E St. NW

The building houses the McCourt School of Public Policy and includes a 400-seat auditorium and the Capitol View Convening Space and rooftop terrace, offering stunning views of the Capitol Building and downtown DC.

FOR MORE INFORMATION

GEORGETOWN LAW

600 New Jersey Avenue, NW
Washington, D.C. 20001-2075

lawadmissions@georgetown.edu
202-662-9010
www.law.georgetown.edu

ACCESSIBILITY SERVICES

www.law.georgetown.edu/your-life-career/campus-services/accessibility-services/

ADMISSIONS

www.law.georgetown.edu/admissions-aid/jd-admissions/

CAREER STRATEGY

www.law.georgetown.edu/your-life-career/career-exploration-professional-development/

EXPERIENTIAL LEARNING

www.law.georgetown.edu/experiential-learning/

DEAN OF STUDENTS

www.law.georgetown.edu/your-life-career/campus-services/office-of-the-dean-of-students/

FINANCIAL AID

www.law.georgetown.edu/admissions-aid/financial-aid/

J.D. ACADEMIC RESOURCES

www.law.georgetown.edu/academics/academic-resources/

JOINT DEGREE PROGRAMS

www.law.georgetown.edu/academics/jd-program/joint-dual-degree-programs/

PUBLIC INTEREST AND COMMUNITY SERVICE (OPICS)

www.law.georgetown.edu/your-life-career/career-exploration-professional-development/for-jd-students/meet-the-teams/office-of-public-interest-and-community-service/

PUBLIC SAFETY

www.law.georgetown.edu/your-life-career/campus-services/public-safety/

REGISTRAR

www.law.georgetown.edu/academics/academic-resources/registrar/

RESIDENCE LIFE & HOUSING

www.law.georgetown.edu/your-life-career/housing/

STUDENT ACCOUNTS

www.law.georgetown.edu/your-life-career/campus-services/student-accounts/

STUDENT LIFE

www.law.georgetown.edu/your-life-career/activities-organizations/office-of-student-life/

INTERNATIONAL STUDENT SERVICES

www.law.georgetown.edu/admissions-aid/international-students/

Produced by Office of Admissions

Written by Sara Piccini

Designed by Brent Futrell, Office of Communications

Photos by Sam Hollenshead; also Brent Futrell, Bill Petros

GEORGETOWN LAW

GEORGETOWN LAW

Georgetown University Law Center
600 New Jersey Avenue, NW
Washington, D.C. 20001-2075

www.law.georgetown.edu