YOUNG LAWYERS FOR THE RULE OF LAW IN THE AMERICAS

The Center for the Advancement of the Rule of Law in the Americas at Georgetown Law (CAROLA) and the Latin America Leadership Program at Georgetown University (LALP) present an innovative virtual program for young lawyers with a vocation and commitment to promoting the Rule of Law in the Americas.

The Young Lawyers for the Rule of Law in the Americas Program will bring together a cadre of 40 young lawyers with diverse backgrounds from the region with a vocation to advance the Rule of Law in their home countries and commitment to regional collaboration, cross-sectoral engagement, and creative problem-solving.

The program seeks to equip young lawyers with analytical frameworks and tools to analyze the state of the Rule of Law at the national, regional, and hemispheric levels, identify successful home-grown reforms, discern the conditions to make their institutions more accountable, and design rule of law reforms that are fair, inclusive, and sustainable.
