

Intellectual Property and Information Policy Clinic Clinical Teaching Fellowship 2025-2027

Description

Georgetown's Intellectual Property and Information Policy (iPIP) Clinic specializes in creative legal and sociotechnical work for justice-minded artists, nonprofits, and coalitions. Learn more about our practice and pedagogy here. We are hiring one lawyer to serve as a clinical teaching fellow for a two-year term, Summer 2025 to Summer 2027, with multiple responsibilities:

- Supervising student attorneys' creative, competent client work;
- Supporting students attorneys' well-being, justice readiness, and lawyering development;
- Sharing teaching responsibility for planning and teaching relevant seminars;
- Shaping the Clinic's docket;
- Sustaining a work environment rooted in trust, humor, respect, and joy.

Former fellows and staff attorneys have gone into teaching and nonprofit practice.

Qualifications

Qualified candidates will have at least 6 months of post-J.D. legal experience that includes 1) some iPIP work, and 2) admission or ability to be admitted to the D.C. Bar. Successful candidates will enjoy iPIP work, share our enthusiasm for working with students and colleagues, and express creativity and joy in their work. No technical degree is necessary, but exposure to clinical pedagogy and practice is preferred.

Pay and Benefits

The annual salary for the position is $70,000 the first year and $75,000 the second year, along with opportunities for medical, dental, and eye insurance. The fellowship also includes a private office in the new Technology Clinics workspace, unlimited access to our state-of-the-art fitness center, supportive mentorship from our welcoming law center colleagues across IP, privacy, and technology, and engagement in academic life through the university-wide Technology & Society Initiative. The fellow may also have time to write and publish their own scholarship, if they so choose.
