Overview of Student Organizations

Our 70+ student organizations provide daily opportunities for student engagement and leadership. Our students make a difference on our campus and in the community each year by hosting timely symposia, advocating for student interests, and serving the wider D.C. community. All students can participate in any student organization at Georgetown Law.

Want to host an environmental justice symposium? How about starring in a musical alongside your fellow students and faculty? Do you want to advocate for the immigrant community in D.C.? There are student organizations for all of that!

Advocates Against Sexual Violence (AASV)

Organization Email: georgetownlawaasv@gmail.com

Description: AASV combats sexual violence and rape culture through education, advocacy, and systemic reform. The organization is committed to inclusiveness and recognizes that sexual violence is a communal harm. Students in AASV examine the legal and social underpinning of sexual violence and rape culture, shifting and encouraging discourse around gender roles, coercion, and consent in Georgetown University Law Center and the broader law community.

American Civil Liberties Union Georgetown Law (ACLU)

Organization Email: lawaclu@georgetown.edu

Description: The ACLU at Georgetown Law strives to advance discussion of civil liberties on campus and to support the ACLU in its mission to defend and promote the protections encompassed in the Bill of Rights of the Federal Constitution and other rights that protect inhabitants of this country from unnecessarily unjust or invasive government action. The ACLU at Georgetown Law aims to further this purpose by sponsoring speakers and debates on timely subjects and keep the campus community apprised of issues implicating our civil liberties. We hope you will join us!

American Constitution Society (ACS)

Organization Email: ACSGeorgetownLaw@gmail.com

Description: ACS National is the leading progressive constitution organization, started at Georgetown 20 years ago. Our student chapter helps law students gain a greater understanding of the legitimacy of a vision of the law that gives human values a central place. As new students begin the process of learning to “think like lawyers,” we believe the activities of our chapter – through speaker programs, debates, symposia and student meetings – demonstrate to them that rigorous legal thinking does not require the abandonment of such values. Finally, our student chapters create a community for like-minded students, and introduce them to faculty, practitioners, former and current government officials, judges, and public interest advocates who share their values.

Anti-Corruption & Anti-Money Laundering Law Student Association (ACAML)

Organization Email: acaml@georgetown.edu

Description: The Anti-Corruption & Anti-Money Laundering Law Student Association was created for Georgetown's students and alumni to have a community dedicated to examining and discussing current topics in anti-corruption and anti-money laundering laws and regulations. Our goal is to promote a learning atmosphere to all members, regardless of experience level, in which everyone can learn about and broaden their knowledge of these areas of practice.

Antitrust Law Association (ALA)

Organization Email: lawantitrust@georgetown.edu

Description: Antitrust laws encourage fair and open competition, serving a vital function in maintaining an innovative and robust national economy. Antitrust lawyers enjoy a wide range of career options, working for the government, law firms, and as in-house counsel. The Antitrust Law Association is an organization for students who would like to pursue a career in antitrust law or learn more about the field. We hope to educate students about the field and provide them with the opportunity to connect with practitioners and scholars of antitrust law. Additionally, our association serves as a forum for interested students to discuss their experiences with the practice area and as a point of contact for professionals looking to connect with the Georgetown Law community.

Asian Pacific American Law Students Association (APALSA)

Description: The Georgetown University Law Center's Asian Pacific American Law Students Association (APALSA) works to improve the Asian Pacific American community's access to the law; provides mentorship, support, and guidance on academic and career matters; sponsors political, cultural, and social events; and promotes a greater understanding of the diverse culture and rich history of Asian Pacific American students.

The Georgetown Asian Pacific American Law Students Association is incredibly active across a wide range of areas at Georgetown Law. Our mission focuses on the academic, professional, and social growth of Georgetown Law students.

- Academic - One of our main focuses is helping students succeed in law school. As a result, we host various academic panels and mentorship programs to help students succeed and thrive at Georgetown Law.
- Professional - We actively organize various professional events that expose students to diverse array of legal careers from private practice to public interest. These events are also great networking opportunities for all attendees.
- Social - We host numerous events celebrating the diverse and rich Asian experiences through cultural and social events. Meet the members of APALSA at our karaoke events, Lunar New Year celebrations, happy hours, and other community activities!

Disability Law Student Association (DLSA)

Organization Email: dlsa@georgetown.edu

Description: The Disability Law Student Association aims to (i) create a supportive community for students with disabilities, (ii) advocate for the concerns and needs of the diverse disability community, (iii) promote the success of students with disabilities on campus and beyond through professional development, (iv) bring awareness to nondisabled students about the need for intersectional approaches that are inclusive of the disability community, and (v) advocate for structural, political, and social reforms that acknowledge and respect the aims of disability justice and accessibility within the Georgetown Law community and beyond.

Equal Justice Foundation (EJF)

Organization Email: lawejf@georgetown.edu

Description: The Equal Justice Foundation ("EJF") is a student-run organization that raises money to support Georgetown Law students who serve as unpaid public interest summer interns. The organization began in 1982 as a competitive fellowship award with only three recipients. EJF has since grown into a program that provides funding to eligible students working without pay for public interest or government organizations during their 1L and/or 2L summers. EJF seeks to ensure that no public interest student feels financially precluded from pursuing legal work for which they have a passion.

Federalist Society (FedSoc)

Organization Email: gulcfedsoc@gmail.com

Description: We are the Georgetown Student Chapter of the Federalist Society for Law and Public Policy. The Federalist Society for Law and Public Policy Studies is a group of conservatives and libertarians interested in the current state of the legal order. It is founded on the principles that the state exists to preserve freedom, that the separation of governmental powers is central to our Constitution, and that it is emphatically the province and duty of the judiciary to say what the law is, not what it should be. The Society seeks both to promote an awareness of these principles and to further their application through its activities.

Georgetown Law Chapter of the Federal Bar Association (FBA GLC)

Organization Email: glcfba@gmail.com

Description: The goal of the Georgetown Law Chapter of the Federal Bar Association is to facilitate relationships, learning and engagement between the Georgetown Law community and members of the federal bar. Our organization will create a productive channel for federal practitioners in the federal judiciary, private sector and federal agencies. We will also provide a nonpartisan forum for conversations and educational programming around developments impacting the federal judiciary and various areas of federal law and practice.

Georgetown Law First Generation Student Union (FGSU)

Organization Email: fgsu@georgetown.edu

Description: Georgetown FGSU is the first-generation student group on campus. We aim to pool the energies and creativity of our members to advocate for a Georgetown Law that is more inclusive and comfortable for 1G students. Our primary goal is to help facilitate the transition to law school for first-generation graduates at Georgetown Law by building a supportive community of students, faculty, staff, and alumni.

Georgetown Law Softball Club

Organization Email: lawssoftball@georgetown.edu

Description: The purpose of this club is to foster a community and provide a forum for students to play recreational and competitive softball in a comfortable environment. Weather permitting, we practice once weekly at the Randall Recreation Center. We participate in two primary inter-law school tournaments: GW Law "Ball on the Mall" Tournament in the fall, and the UVA Law Softball Invitational in the spring. Participation is voluntary, and members are divided into teams for the tournaments. All levels of experience welcome! Basic equipment (bats and balls) are provided, and captains of the club are willing to provide instruction upon request.

With numbers conducive to sending multiple teams to each tournament, we are able to develop both "social" teams and competitive teams. The competitive teams in recent history have experienced great success. We take pride in the titles of 2016-2017 GW Law "Ball on the Mall" Tournament Champions and 2017-2018 UVA Law Softball Invitational Final Four Finalists (in a pool of approximately 75 teams).

Irrespective of the differing levels of competition, we make it our mission to foster a unified social environment. Beyond providing an opportunity for athletic activity, the Georgetown Law Softball Club is a great way to develop friendships, form mentorship relationships, and connect with fellow members of the Georgetown Law community.

Georgetown Law Students for Justice in Palestine (GLSJP)

Organization Email: lsjpgeorgetown@gmail.com

Description: Spread Awareness about the ongoing occupation in Palestine. Nationally, Students for Justice in Palestine's work is centered on freedom, justice, and equality for the Palestinian people, particularly as it pertains to Israeli occupation. SJP Nationals believes that all struggles for freedom, justice, and equality are interconnected and that we must embody the principles and ideals we envision for a just society.

Georgetown Law Texas Club (Howdy Hoyas)

Organization Email: howdyhoyas@gmail.com

Description: We intend for the club to be a one-stop-shop for those interested in practicing in Texas to learn about the market and make connections with attorneys, organizations, and firms. Our club is not just for those interested in working in Texas. It also functions as an affinity group and alumni association – a resource for Georgetown Law Students from Texas (or fond of Texas) to connect with other students and maintain those connections throughout their careers.

If/When/How

Organization Email: ifwhenhow.gulc@gmail.com

Description: If/When/How is a national nonprofit that trains, networks, and mobilizes law students and legal professionals to work within and beyond the legal system to champion reproductive justice. We believe that achieving reproductive justice will take thoughtful action and strategic activism: acknowledging the intersection of identities, collaborating across disciplines, and working toward a critical transformation of the current legal system. Because ensuring that all people have the right to decide if/when/how to create families depends entirely on if, when, and how hard we fight.

International Migrants Bill of Rights (IMBR)

Organization Email: imbr@georgetown.edu

Description: The International Migrants Bill of Rights (IMBR) Initiative was founded at Georgetown University Law Center in 2008 to contribute to the development of a legal framework that protects the rights of all international migrants. As a student organization, IMBR now aims to 1) guide students toward a better understanding of issues related to migrants' rights and federal immigration law/policy developments through events and a newsletter/blog; 2) connect students interested in immigration law careers to relevant peers, alumni, potential mentors, community members, internship opportunities, etc.; 3) provide students with opportunities to engage in discussions with each other and immigration experts; 4) participate in community service projects, policy advocacy initiatives, civil activism activities, and social gatherings; 5) support public interest immigration law students in a variety of ways; and 6) collaborate with other student organizations to ensure intersectionality. IMBR welcomes suggestions/recommendations, feedback, and other ideas from students, faculty/staff members, and community members. IMBR believes that 1) the rights of all migrants should be protected regardless of why or how they cross nation-state borders; 2) all members of the legal community should prioritize individuals' best interests and incorporate trauma-informed care practices into their work; 3) prisons and detention centers should be abolished; 4) Black Lives Matter; and 5) "no one is free until we are all free."

International Refugee Assistance Project (IRAP)

Organization Email: irap@georgetown.edu

Description: The International Refugee Assistance Project (IRAP) is committed to providing quality legal advocacy to refugees and displaced persons and offering Georgetown Law students meaningful opportunities to gain experience in direct services and policy. We are part of IRAP National, a non-profit legal aid and impact litigation organization based in New York City. IRAP also has field offices in Amman, Jordan, and Beirut, Lebanon.

IRAP created a “virtual public interest law firm” comprised of over 1200 law students from 29 law schools in the United States and Canada working under the supervision of pro bono attorneys from over 120 international law firms. IRAP students and attorneys work together to assist thousands of refugees and displaced persons with urgent registration, protection, and resettlement cases.

Students working on IRAP case teams gain experience directing their own cases with their small student teams and pro-bono attorneys, and can expect to engage in firsthand in such tasks as drafting and filing refugee applications with UNHCR, priority applications with USRAP (the U.S. Refugee Admissions Program), asylum applications to European countries and Australia, and SIV (Special Immigrant Visa) applications for Iraqis and Afghans who have assisted U.S. forces.

IRAP also offers a number of other ways to engage in refugee law and policy. IRAP National hosts an annual Policy Day and offers student trips to the IRAP field offices in Jordan and Lebanon and send students to the annual student summit in NYC, an incredible opportunity to network with law students engaged in refugee and immigration work across the country.

LL.M. Tax Council

Description: The Tax Council for this new year has two main goals. Firstly, we want to increase Taxation LL.M. students' job prospects by providing opportunities to network with professionals in our field as well as to perfect our interview skills. Secondly, our aim is to provide our fellow students with opportunities to boost their knowledge of current tax issues by setting up academic panels and conferences.

- Sharing our knowledge of Tax Law: Organizing panels, conferences, and debates on the "hottest" issues in the field of taxation. As we all know, knowledge means power – as well as greater job prospects. These panels and conferences would provide students with opportunities (i) to heighten their knowledge of specific areas of Tax Law which are of interest to recruiters, (ii) to discover a new field of interest, and (iii) to actively participate in exchanges with fellow students and professionals.
- Becoming proactive Tax practitioners: We are dedicated to helping our fellow LL.M. students develop the necessary skill set to work the job market and to become the best possible tax practitioners they can be. One of the methods through which we intend to do this is by organizing breakfast and cocktail gatherings on the premises of law and accounting firms. We believe these gatherings will allow us not only to have an insight into the work environment in these firms but will also represent a great opportunity for networking.

Middle Eastern and North African Law Students Association (MENALSA)

Organization Email: menalsa@georgetown.edu

Description: The mission of Georgetown Law's Middle Eastern and North African Law Student Association (MELSA) is to provide a healthy and accepting cultural platform for law students of Middle Eastern and North African descent. The organization's main purpose is twofold: (1) to promote diversity and inclusion on campus and in the greater community via outreach efforts, and (2) to provide student members with a welcoming network where they can thrive and connect with the greater Middle Eastern and North African student body and community.

Muslim Law Students Association (MLSA)

Organization Email: mlsa@georgetown.edu

Description: The Georgetown Muslim Law Students Association seeks to create a community for Muslims on campus and to foster important spaces and conversations for the Georgetown Law community as a whole. Our events are open to everyone and include spiritually enriching conversations with our chaplain, game nights, lunch talks, and discussions with prominent Muslim lawyers and activists. We host religious and spiritual programs in the Muslim prayer room including Quran classes and theological discussions. Our prayer room, which serves as a solace for many in our community, is located right on the ground floor of Gewirz, and it is always open for reflection and prayer.

As a student organization, we are dedicated to ensuring that pressing socio-political issues such as institutionalized Islamophobia, racism, and anti-Blackness are at the forefront of our organizing. We want to thrust these topics into our campus' nuanced dialogues, and to that end, we have partnered with the Black Law Students Association, the Asian Pacific Law Students Association, Outlaw, the Latin American Law Students Association, the South Asian Law Students Association, the National Lawyers Guild, the Jewish Law Students Association, and the Office of Equity and Inclusion. As for local partnerships we have worked with the Capitol Area Muslim Bar Association, the National Women's Law Center, Muslim Advocates, and the Human Rights Campaign. We hope to continue to connect students to important issues, and continue to be a leading affinity group on campus.
